Program Topic: "Talent Is Never Enough"

"We live in a talent-obsessed culture. Media, managers, and others fawn over talented people. But talent alone does not ensure success. Only "talent-plus people" -- those whose personal attributes activate, direct, sustain, and protect their talent -- are able to rise to the top." John C. Maxwell

After having submitted some prize-winning creations... what's on the road ahead? Talent is what drove each of the students to create their science fair project. And talent indeed is what resulted in each of them being recognized as winners.

But, something to keep in mind is that "talent alone will not carry a person into a life of success. It takes some key personal character traits and practices to compliment raw talent."

The presentation complimentd the Science Fair theme for the night. It will give focus to the things one should consider in complimenting talent.

Based on John C. Maxwell's book: "Talent Is Never Enough"

Speaker: Stan Renteria, Quality Manager, Medtronic

- Stan is a Senior Quality Systems Manager at Medtronic Powered Surgical Solutions in Fort Worth, Texas, a division of Medtronic, Inc., a medical device manufacturer headquartered in Minneapolis, Minnesota. His career has been focused in manufacturing and quality, having previously worked for companies such as GM, Rockwell, and Motorola.

- Over the past several years, Stan has actively developed his leadership skills and takes the opportunity to sharpen and practice these 'soft skills' in his effort to add value to people around him. Stan is a member of the ASQ Fort Worth Section's Leadership Team and has grown and cultivated his personal network, making meaningful contacts which have provided mutual benefit to himself and others.
 - Stan had been a past presenter at the Ft Worth PD Meeting, speaking on leadership topics and leading networking engagements.
