

topics. This approach permits the scheduling of 60-90 min morning presentations (3 hours total). At noon, we take a break and join our guests for lunch.

In the afternoon, we reconvene, and open the sessions to small discussion groups that focus on personal or common theme issues. There is much less structure (you offer a discussion topic, and individuals “sign up” to join you). Often the discussions happen in the lounges over afternoon drinks! Some members skip this and join their guests for shipboard activities. We track hours of ASQ participation and issue RU credits per participation. At 5 pm we formally break and hold no evening activities... perhaps there may be social time with guests or informal gatherings of the group participants.

In ports (three days), we do no group presentations. All are encouraged to take shore excursions (provided by ship at added costs), go off on your own, or just relax on a nearly-empty ship. Often our participants group-up and do excursions together. It’s your choice, with no structured ASQ activities.

This overall model has served us well, with high rating of the cruise and repeat attendance. Unfortunately we CANNOT tell you in advance of the program topics detail... just give you a sample of topics from past cruises. If you attempt to get some payment made by your company, this is you only “sales tool” to convince them of value. Many companies over the years have paid the conference fees and/or some (or most) of the cruise / travel costs. Utilize your Personal Development Plan as the basis for approval and funding, and maybe even on company time as you would get for other conferences. ASK!

Shipboard Life:

Food, food, and more food... all at your discretion. We do nothing to coordinate breakfast or lunch meals... spend time with your guests, or just meet other participants in the dining areas. For dinner, we do have a reserved block of tables where we dine together. Although we are ‘assigned’ specific tables, we often confuse the wait staff by switching tables to get to know others in our group by dining together.

There are many options to consume your time on board. The ship typically offers various free classes. You can work off the food in the gym. There is a library, board games, spas, multiple pools, and various action/fun events. Evening options include stage shows, and a variety of music venues in lounges. There is always something, even if it’s just sleeping on the sun decks. Almost forgot the casino, with standard games and special tournaments.

I must advise... drinks, casino, excursions are all at an extra cost... set a budget and try to avoid blowing it!

Seasickness... always a potential issue, but most people do not have a problem. You can get Dramamine or other meds before boarding or wait until you have some symptoms and get it on board. If you have a major concern, tell the booking agent, and seek a lower deck, center ship cabin that has less pitch & roll. Ships have stabilizers to minimize both.

And for COVID Protocols. We are sorry if they may deter your participation. They are dynamic as the stock market, but here's the status as of 12/31/21 as a starting point:

- Royal is requiring vaccinations of all passengers
- Pre boarding testing is required
- NEW 12/15/21... due to the Omicron variant, they require masks in indoor spaces (except your cabin and while eating/drinking)
- Any non-vax exceptions must be addresses directly with Royal

We will provide web links to the most current information by Royal.

The Costs:

Conference Fees: $150 Conference participant – payable directly to ASQ Ft Worth
 $ 50 all non-seminar guests
 $ 25 youth / senior guests (3rd and 4th persons in cabins)

Personal costs include the cost of the cabin you choose for you and your guests. All cabins are booked on a per person (pp) cost. You must also cover your transportation before and after the cruise and may want to book a hotel the night before to assure you're in Galveston on Sailing Date. You do not want to 'miss the boat'. You will be offered travel insurance that can cover various issues of travel delay or other situations... your risk / your choice.

Cabin prices are established at the time of the group booking. If we must eventually give up some of the block of cabins, you can still join the group, but the price may change, as the cruise line charges at "market rate" once our block prices have expired. We'll keep communicating deadlines in general promotional materials. The group may also get special amenities like shipboard credits as part of the pricing, that effectively reduces the real cost below the price you book the cabins at. And based on our ASQ budget, we sometimes give you cabin credits to meet our "break-even budget" objective.

Effective 11/15, our 2022 prices, including taxes and port fees are:
 $808 Balcony per person (pp) for the 1st and 2nd person in a cabin
 Two-person total would be $1616
 $628 Ocean View pp
 $488 Interior pp

Tax Deductible: per your tax advisor Children/Parents? – OK at 3rd or 4th passenger half rates above?

Cost Item	Other	Cruise	... Cruise Notes ...
Conf Fee (3 day)	1095	150	receive shipboard credits ~$50
Hotel (4 nights)	700	810	7 nights (Balcony cabin)
Meals (3.5 days)	225	0	7 days – included in total cost
Total	$2020	$960	plus the fun factor

Reservation Process:

We cannot hold 3 and 4-person cabins. Early booking is the best options to secure one for your party.

The cost pp for these added passengers is about half the above prices.

Additionally, there are Suite cabins available for those who want to upgrade their experience.

We provide a planning worksheet that helps you determine your needs and the information the booking agent requires. Passports are required. For non-US citizens, you can be advised by the booking agent about port rules (a year to secure visas, etc. as necessary).

The booking deadlines will be published to newsletters and web pages periodically. Per the current agreement, 05/30/22 is the current pricing, but we will be trying to get that extended by a couple more months.

And I did not state above, the ASQ Cruise is open to anyone who wants to join us. We've had friends of the members join us as well as families (8 to 80... grandkids and member's parents), cousins, etc. If you find out about us, you can join. Conference participation is not required, and guests are charged a much lower fee than the conference participants. As desired, spouses (plus 1 guests) join as conference attendees too, for their professional/personal development and education.

We post updates on the most current cabin pricing and program committed on our website. Check here periodically: <https://s1416.weebly.com/asq-cruise-2022.html>
