PDM - Eli Goldratt Focus

✦ The Jonah Thinking Processes in Eliyahu M. Goldratt's

Theory of Constraints

- ◆ The purpose of the Jonah Thinking Processes is to identify ways to solve systemic problems... to break the “constraint” of one’s thinking patterns. It seeks to identify the root cause of many symptoms, develop logical solutions to systemic problems, and create implementation plans. These three are referred to as the three questions of change, “What to change?”, “What to change to?”, and “How to cause the change?”
- ◆ The Jonah Thinking Processes borrow heavily from the scientific approach, where one tries to determine cause and effect relationships that exist and then test the validity of those connections, uncovering assumptions that underlie those connections.

✦ Certified Jonah

- ◆ Expert who provides industry, companies, and individuals with an internationally recognized standard to assess their level of expertise of Theory of Constraints.

3

General Tutorial

✦ Topic: “The Evaporating Cloud – Resolving Conflict”

- ◆ Assumptions are the things that we believe about what must be done to satisfy our wants and needs.
- ◆ Using diagrams to describe the key elements of a conflict situation.
- ◆ Injecting alternative ways to satisfy stakeholders that is not in conflict with each others needs.

✦ Speaker: Dolores Harris, Certified Jonah, retired

- ◆ Thirty years using teaching and Quality tools at both the Department of Defense, Internal Revenue Service and as part of ASQ’s Koalaty Kid Process Improvement program.
- ◆ Longtime member and former Section 1416 Leader.
