

UL DQS

UL DQS offers assessments and certifications, along with on-line and on-site training activities to help you navigate the requirements of ISO 50001. This standard provides a system approach for Energy Management and helps organizations establish systems and processes to improve energy performance.

UL DQS is one of the top certification bodies for the automotive industry in the world. Our leading industry experts have extensive experience and work to provide value throughout the supply chain. We can easily integrate audits based on the standards you have chosen to implement. This saves time and money!

Customers, now more than ever, are demanding safe, quality foods. To ensure the safety and quality of their products, many companies have chosen to implement a food safety management system with a focus on these issues throughout the supply chain.
